

FOSSIL FUELS CONTAIN ENERGY FROM THE SUN

Coal, oil, and natural gas are called fossil fuels because they were made from prehistoric plants and animals.

The energy in the plants and animals originally came from the sun.

We use the energy in fossil fuels to cook our food, warm our homes, run our cars, and make electricity.

Most of the energy we use today comes from fossil fuels.