

PHOTOSYNTHESIS

All living things need energy to grow.

Plants use water and light from the sun to grow.

Plants change the energy from the sun into sugar and store it in their roots and leaves.

This is called photosynthesis.